Blackout, block off

If your lights went out about 10:30 Friday morning, or if you couldn't get off Route 93 at Route 125, there was good reason. With one truck stopped for a left turn onto Ballardvale Street, another truck attempted to pass on the right. A washout on a storm drain caused the truck to veer off the road and hit a utility pole. The mishap shut off electric power in North Wilmington, and traffic on Route 125. Although many electric customers had their power back within an hour, others waited for four hours. Traffic was detoured through the evening rush hour, and many motorists accustomed to getting off Route 93 at that exit had to continue on to Dacomh Road.

Trailer home destroyed in fire

A Wilmington couple lost everything in a fire in their trailer home early Monday morning.

Scott and Jane McGrath of 22 Perry Ave. returned home shortly before 1 a.m. to find their trailer aglow. Scott opened the door to the trailer, and was bowled over by the escaping heat. With the door open, the couple's dog was able to escape from the fire.

Deputy Chief Daniel Stewart said that the fire started in a heating coil on a water pipe under the trailer. He said that firefighters had a difficult time with the fire, because of its being in a trailer. Being enclosed in aluminum, the fire was hot, smoky and stubborn. To compound the problem, firefighters were not able to cut a hole in the roof, as they would do with a house fire.

Another problem for the Fire Department was mud. The trailer was located opposite Lucci's Shopping Center on a dirt road. Engines One and Two both became stuck, and had to be pulled out by Forrest Downs and Chuck Cornish, using a winch on a Tree Department truck.

The McGraths, who own a silk-screen printing business in the Lucci Shopping Center, had owned the trailer for two and a half years. They are staying with her parents.

Mutual aid from Tewksbury and North Reading stood by at the fire station during the fire.

Hearing on PRD regulations

The Wilmington Planning Board is planning public discussions and a hearing on its proposed regulations for Planned Residential Districts. The discussions will take place March 6, starting at 7:30 p.m. in the planning office in the old Whitefield School.

Planner Kevin Hurley of Concord, who drew up the regulations will be present. The discussions will be a preliminary to the final adoption of PRD regulations.

Water supply problem: property on town line

Three former farms in Tewksbury, Andover and Wilmington, owned by developer James Kelly of Burlington, are the source of problems in sewerage and water supplies. Mr. Kelly discussed them, on Feb. 17 with Wilmington Water Commissioner Arthur Smith.

The former Whitten farm, off Ballardvale Street, has six acres in Wilmington and one in Andover.

The former Nardone and Berg farms are larger, but not in Wilmington. Their acres are on lower ground in Tewksbury and Andover.

Wilmington can service the six acres of the Whitten farm, but no more than that Smith ruled. The Wilmington commissioners do not like to service homes or industries that are not in Wilmington.

A broken water main, in the yard or nearby, of a building on Industrial Way may be the subject for discussion at the selectmen's meeting next Monday. There may be as many as four viewpoints presented.

Nicki Johnson, president of the Chamber of Commerce has received a letter from James Mitza, of Thomas J. Lipton Inc., telling of the problems encountered on January 25. Mrs. Johnson will probably be at the selectmen's meeting to discuss the subject.

Mitza reported that when he arrived at work the yard was a mass of mud. He called the Water Department and talked with superintendent, Paul Duggan who told Mitza the water department had shut off the water at 2:30 a.m. after a water main broke. He said, according to Mitza, that the town could fix the main, but he didn't want to, because he was short handed.

Mitza reports that Duggan had suggested a call to Ed DeLoury, in Andover. Mr. DeLoury, according to Mitza, did not know when he could get there.

Mitza then called Nicki Johnson, who suggested a call to the town manager. "It was now 10:30 and I was no farther ahead than I was at 7 a.m.," said Mitza. There was millions of dollars of merchandise in the building, and no protection.

He called the Billerica Water Department (Mitza lives in Billerica) and they gave him a number of persons whom he could call. Arrangements were made for a contractor to be working by noon.

The town manager, Mitza says, called back at 11 a.m. and was ready to give him a number of names to call. His observation was that he got more out of Billerica than he did out of Wilmington.

Duggan has said that he does not like to enter buildings to do water repairs, or do it on private property. The water department will maintain its own mains, but does not want to be involved in the maintenance of private water mains or plumbing.

The property at 25 Industrial Way was installed by private contractors. He was not certain that the plans were correct, and untold difficulties could evolve.

Because he was short handed, he did not have any spare time to talk, under the circumstances of the moment.

The town manager, too, has said that the plans for the building were incorrect. The plans showed an eight inch main. The contractor arrived with an eight inch collar, and found he needed a 10 inch collar. The mains were not laid as shown by the plans, Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski said.

He is preparing a statement for the next selectmen's meeting.

obituaries

Services Saturday for Catherine Marfleet

Mrs. Catherine Marfleet of 27 Boutwell St., Wilmington died at her home Sunday afternoon.

Sixty-one years of age, born in Boston, she was the daughter of the late Helen (Lyons) and the late Joseph Turcotte. She had been a resident of Wilmington for the past 36 years, and was a member of the Wilmington Women's Club and the Craft Girls of North Wilmington.

Mrs. Marfleet is survived by her husband, Lt. Commander Albert Marfleet, USN, Ret., and two sons, Walter H. and Albert, both of Wilmington. There are three sisters, Mrs. Dorothy Gillis, and Mrs. Maryann Shaw, both of North Reading and Mrs. Rose Lussier of Fayetteville, North Carolina; and two brothers Leon and Paul Turcotte of North Reading.

Memorial services are to be held at the Wilmington United Methodist Church Saturday, Feb. 25 at 10 a.m., with the Rev. Lawrence O'Brien officiating. Memorials, in her name, to aid in a ministry for the terminally ill, may be made to the Wilmington United Methodist Church, 89 Church St., Wilmington. Discretionary Fund. Please omit flowers.

Arrangements are in charge of the W.S. Cavanaugh & Son Funeral Home of Wilmington.

Joseph Malibo, World War II veteran

Joseph D. Malibo of 1 Hillcrest St., Wilmington died at his residence on Sunday evening following a brief illness.

Seventy years of age, he was born in Scranton, Pennsylvania, the son of the late Caroline (Russo) and the late Joseph Malibo. He had been a resident of Wilmington most of his life. He was a veteran of World War II having served in the U.S. Army. He was a staff sergeant upon his discharge.

Prior to retirement he was a gourmet decorator in the Boston area.

Mr. Malibo is survived by his brother, Anthony Malibo of East Boston and many nieces and nephews.

The funeral will be held from the W.S. Cavanaugh & Son Funeral Home, 374 Main St., Wilmington Thursday morning at 9:15 followed by a funeral mass at St. Thomas Church at 10:00. Burial will follow in Wildwood Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home on Wednesday from 2 to 4 and from 7 to 9 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Mangano

Mary Lou Turner, Robert Mangano exchange vows

Mary Lou Turner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Turner of Easton, Conn., exchanged wedding vows with Michael Mangano, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mangano of Tewksbury on October 1 at Notre Dam of Easton Church.

The maid of honor was Marianne Kenny of Barrington, N.H., Elizabeth Hird of Pawtucket, R.I. and Christine Mangano, sister of the groom were bridesmaids. The bride's cousin, Jill Jamieson of Den- ville, N.J. was the flower girl. Serving as his brother's best man was John Mangano of Tewksbury. Scott Steffon of Groton, Conn. and James Mangano, brother of the groom were ushers.

After a reception at Brooklawn Country Club, Fairfield, Conn., the couple left for a honeymoon in St. Maarten. They are now living in Groton Long Point, Conn.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Rhode Island where she received a B.S. in plant science. She received her M.S. in botany and plant pathology from the University of New Hampshire. She is an assistant scientist in the Plant Genetics Department at Pfizer, Groton, Conn.

Mr. Mangano is an alumnus of Merrimack College, North Andover, where he received his B.S. in chemistry. He received his M.S. in chemistry from the University of New Hampshire. He is employed in the Medical Research Department at Pfizer, Groton, Conn.

CARD OF THANKS

Our most sincere thanks to the Wilmington Fire Department for their help Sunday night - Monday morning. The firefighters exposed themselves to very real danger in trying to contain the fire, this is something we will never forget.

The men still showed real compassion and concern for both our well being and the well being of what few personal effects they could save.

And many thanks to the Highway Department crew that was needed to pull the fire trucks out of the quagmire we affectionately call a driveway.

A very special thanks to Dan
Stewart for the work done on the job, and all the help rendered in dealing with all the personal and legal problems afterward.

Scott and Jane McGrath

Dan Ballou, chairman of the Wilmington Board of Selectmen, was at the Regional Health Center on Monday to kick off the Daffodil Day drive by the American Cancer Society. With Dan is Diane Ferguson.

Daffodil Day to benefit American Cancer Society

Michael Brown has been appointed Daffodil Day Chair for the Greater Lowell Unit of the American Cancer Society, it was announced by Joyce Kulhawik, honorary state Daffodil Day Chair. Ms. Kulhawik is the arts - entertainment reported on WBZ-TV's Eyewitness News.

Daffodil Day will be held March 21 in Greater Lowell and other communities throughout Massachusetts. "The Daffodil is the first flower of spring, and as such has been designated a symbol of hope by the American Cancer Society," Ms. Kulhawik said. "The money raised through this campaign will be used to provide services and sickroom supplies to cancer patients, as well as to further the Society's cancer control efforts through research and public education."

Michael Brown, who is manager of the Security National Bank, Rogers Street, Lowell, as well as treasurer of the local American Cancer Society, has arranged with local banks to distribute order forms for the daffodils along with the February statements. Persons wishing to participate should watch for the yellow flyer accompanying their bank statement from Union National Bank, Central Savings, Commonwealth Federal Savings, First Bank & Trust, Lowell Co-op, Lowell Five Cent Savings, Lowell Institution for Savings, Security National and Washington Savings Banks. A minimum donation of $3 per bouquet of 10, and $150 per box of 500 flowers is being asked.

Business and organizations are also being asked to participate by ordering flowers for their own offices, or to have them delivered to hospitals and nursing homes in the area.

"Last year, over 5,000 daffodils brightened the Greater Lowell area - we aim for a 50 percent increase this year," Mike Brown said. "Anyone interested in ordering daffodils, or in working as a volunteer for Daffodil Day should call the American Cancer Society at 454-6811."

Wilmington to shut off water to Tewksbury

The Wilmington Water Commissioners voted, several weeks ago to send a letter to the Tewksbury Selectmen, saying that the water Wilmington is supplying to Tewksbury is to be shut off, on May 1. The reasons are two: non-payment of bills, and the fact that there is a lot of building going on in Tewksbury.

Thursday night the commissioners acted again. They voted, unanimously, to send a letter to the Tewksbury selectmen, respectfully requesting that the selectmen attend a commissioners' meeting on March 1. The commissioners seek an explanation of why the water bills are not paid.

Again they set a cut-off date of May 1. A copy is being mailed to Tewksbury's DPW engineer, Phil Pattison.

Tewksbury has signed an agreement with Lowell, for that city to provide up to 800,000 gallons per day. A 16-inch water main is under construction to carry that water.

CLOCK Tock

by
THE CLOCKFOLK OF NEW ENGLAND
Wilmington

The grandfather clock is a logical development of a wall clock with the weights and pendulum enclosed in a dust-resistant cabinet which can stand on the floor. It originally was invented in England in the 1660's, with the first cabinets seldom being over six feet tall and made of painted pine or oak. The desire for ornamentation quickly led to veneering, inlay, and carving to produce, by the 1690's, some of the most embellished domestic clocks ever made. Most of the early grandfather clock faces were engraved solid brass, but after about 1790, sheet iron, painted white with floral decorations, became fashionable.

By the 1890's grandfather clocks had reached not only the peak of adornment, but the maximum of height and size with superb craftsmanship in even the tiniest detail whether visible to the consumer or not. Constructed mostly in Germany, England and America and sold through only the finest retailers, these clocks would employ such materials as mahogany cabinets, beveled glass; hand engraving, gold plating and a variety of chime melodies to sound on tubular bells, cup-shaped bells, or a row of gongs.

We recently restored a 60-year-old German-made masterpiece which had seven different chime melodies which played on 13 tubular bells. After the midnight strike, it changed automatically to the next chime - a different chime each day. Grandfather clocks are one of the few furnishings that can be considered a living piece of furniture.

Educational Update

by Dr. Carol Sager

Ever since the study A Nation at Risk was published last April, education has become front page news. People across the country have a renewed interest in educational issues and are asking questions about what is going on in our schools.

In Wilmington, too, all citizens, not just parents of school age children, are recognizing the importance of a good educational system for the entire community and are becoming increasingly curious about what's happening in the Wilmington Public Schools.

Each week in Educational Update I intend to highlight a particular program, issue, or concern affecting education of which I want to share. We also have our problems which I will discuss candidly.

This week it is indeed a pleasure to inform you that the North Intermediate School has been chosen as one of six junior high - middle schools to represent Massachusetts in a national Secondary School Recognition Program which is sponsored by the U.S. Department of Education.

Secretary Bell has stated that the purpose of the Secondary School Recognition Program is to identify and call attention to a national group of schools that are unusually successful in meeting the educational needs of all of their students. This is the second year of this program. Last year 152 of the 396 high schools and junior high - middle schools which were nominated nationwide were recognized by the U.S. Department of Education.

Massachusetts is eligible to submit the application forms from six high schools and six middle or junior high schools statewide to Washington for their final selection. The final selection process may include a site visit by the national review panel. The announcement of schools to be recognized is scheduled for the week of June 11, 1984.

In applying for this program Dr. Joseph J. Connelly had to answer questions related to the following 14 attributes of success which were used to determine the overall quality of schools:

1. Clear academic goals; 2. high expectations for students; 3. order and discipline; 4. rewards and incentives for students; 5. regular and frequent monitoring of student progress; 6. opportunities for meaningful student responsibility and participation; 7. teacher efficiency; 8. rewards and incentives for teachers; 9. concentration on academic learning time; 10. positive school climate; 11. administrative leadership; 12. well-articulated curriculum; 13. evaluation for instructional improvement; 14. community support and involvement.

In each of these areas Dr. Connelly identified many fine programs and practices that are going on in his school and systemwide, throughout all of the Wilmington Public Schools. According to Dr. Connelly, what makes his school unique is the level of parent involvement, the teacher commitment and the student participation in school government.

For the past two years parents have coordinated Occupational Awareness Program for North Intermediate students with the help of local business and industry. Parent Information Programs have been sponsored by the North Intermediate Parents Advisory Committee each year for all parents in all schools in Wilmington. Each year committees of parents are formed in the following areas to promote a better school for students and to foster positive school - community attitudes:

1. Home - School communication; 2. cultural - values assemblies; 3. major school improvement projects; 4. occupational awareness trips for students; 5. school evaluation; 6. fund raisers; 7. parent information programs; and 8. family school activities.

At the North Intermediate School daily teacher attendance is a record 96 percent. Teachers are encouraged to take professional improvement days to attend workshops, seminars and conferences in their areas of instruction. Through his involvement in the Massachusetts Junior High - Middle School Principals Association, Dr. Connelly has initiated several interchange days. This year teams of teachers from the North Intermediate School will participate in and help facilitate a Department Interchange Day, Student Activity Interchange Day, and Computer Literacy Interchange Day for junior high-middle schools from the entire northeast region.

Each year Dr. Connelly highlights a major instructional goal for the staff to address individually and collectively. During the 1983 - 1984 school year he identified improved writing as a school - wide goal which each staff member will work on in all subject areas.

Teachers at the North Intermediate are interested in their students and are willing to spend time to work with students in a variety of ways. This year teachers were concerned about students' insensitivity to one another. Thirteen teachers volunteered to use their non-teaching time to meet with groups of students to discuss this issue and to offer them direct counseling.

Student attendance at the North Intermediate is 95 percent. Five years ago the North Intermediate was averaging 60 out of school suspensions a year. This year there have been only four out of school suspensions indicating a marked improvement in school discipline. Additionally, vandalism of school property has been significantly reduced with little or no abuse of school property occurring.

The Student Council at the North Intermediate meets regularly and takes on several school and community improvement projects each year. The North Intermediate Student Council initiated a Family Museum Pass Fund for the Wilmington Public Library after the existing family pass program was eliminated due to Proposition 2 1/2. Other involvements which benefit the entire community include:

Christmas party for senior citizens; toys for tots drive; visitation and distribution of gifts to State Hospital for the retarded; entertaining Wilmington citizens through the North Intermediate special dance and choral groups; community beautification and conservation projects.

For the North Intermediate School to be chosen as one of six junior high - middle schools statewide to represent Massachusetts in a national competition is indeed an honor for the entire town. A nation may be at risk due to ineffective educational practices, but Wilmington is definitely not. The North Intermediate is but one part of a total winning team.

Does this mean we have no issues to address or problems to solve? Certainly not! But part of being good is recognizing what can be done better. I will discuss these and many other issues in future columns. In the meantime, if you have any questions to ask or topics you would like me to write about, please contact me at my office at 658-2052.

1740 town meeting in Hathorne home

Copyright 1984 by
Capt. Larz Neilson

Possibly 30 men took part in the town meeting in the home of the Hathorne family in 1740-1. Seven "dissenters" from the election of Isaac Morrill as the town pastor. Two of the dissenters were of the Harnden family, the second John Harnden, and the second Lieutenant Benjamin Harnden.

Isaac Morrill was not the only person discussed. The claims of the Rev. James Varney was still an active subject. The subject was brought up in nearly every town meeting.

A committee of three persons was appointed to deal with the question. This was not the first committee, and still more were to come to deal with Mr. Varney. Cadwallader Ford, Samuel Walker and Benjamin Lewis were appointed.

Cadwallader Ford can be of some interest. His home, supposed to have been built in 1720 in The Land of Nod is now the home of John Brooks, in North Wilmington.

Ford was, essentially, a trader who perhaps later became an attorney. He had the honorific of "Esquire" in the years before the Revolution. By 1739 he had attained a position which made him one of the more prominent persons in the Colony.

The colony had gone through two types of currency, "old tenor" and "new tenor." Both were just "paper currency" and were losing value.

A group of people proposed a new type of currency, to be called "Mannefactory." It was based on a Land Bank and Mannefactory Scheme. The basis of the scheme was that real estate would be the security for the currency. It was not unlike many such schemes which have been proposed over the years, none of which succeeded.

Twelve hundred and fifty-four men proposed the "Mannefactory" scheme. Cadwallader Ford was one of those. His appointment to the committee did not add to its value in the eyes of Mr. Varney. Instead it just added to the fire.

He had already turned down a proposal to accept that kind of currency when Ford was appointed to the committee.

The committee was instructed to "attend upon ye Cort" and to "act in ye Towns behalf." A month later another town meeting added to the committee by adding the names of Stephen Wesson, Ensign Daniel Eames and Joshua Thompson (brother of Jeams) to the list of members. The committee was "Impoverished" to "appoint or Constitute an Attorney or attorneys" to "Manage this Case to a final Judgement."

But nothing happened. Mr. Varney finally disappears from the records. It seems his claims were never settled.

State Senator Chester Clark of Wilmington about 1908 stated that the Rev. Mr. Varney went to Boscowan, New Hampshire where he was preaching in 1754. He never again appeared in Wilmington.

John Harnden, who had been one of the "dissenters" was at a sort of low point in his career, as far as town government goes. He had been a deacon, a school teacher, and a selectman. In 1741 he was none of those.

On May 19, 1742 the selectmen appointed Benjamin Lewis to be the school teacher. That family had been in the area as early as 1705, and he was one of the three men to serve in the committee with Cadwallader Ford.

But Lewis lasted only a year. John Harnden was again appointed school teacher in 1743. He was also elected a deacon. Whatever had been his problem, if there was one, was gone.

John Harnden no longer participated in the dissent about Mr. Morrill. Not such was the case of Lieutenant Benjamin Harnden.

In December 1742 the town meeting voted 100 pounds, Old Tenor, settlement money for Mr. Morrill. It also voted 150 pounds Old Tenor, for salary. The amount of salary had increased because of the decreasing value of the currency.

There was but one dissent this time. It came from Lieutenant Benjamin Harnden, he who lived on what is now Main Street, near Butters Row.

Letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

Deming Way is going to start arts and crafts the first Wednesday in March.

We would appreciate from anyone who can contribute (form of donations), yarn, knitting needles, anything related to such will be greatly appreciated.

Please send all donations to Deming Way Hall, or office, 41 Deming Way, Wilmington, Mass. 01887.

Yours truly,
Mrs. Margaret Pellegrino, Pres.
Tenant's Association

Dear Larz:

Poor government comes about when good people sit on their hands, instead of standing on their feet!

Can we talk? The Town of Wilmington will get what it deserves if the elected officials in this community are allowed to be controlled by a political alignment that has nothing to do with good town government.

Private interest and industry are being served in this community, people are aware of it, they complain about it and yet they do nothing about it.

I realize the challenge of running for public office is not an easy one, you will have to face character assassination, personal abuse and all the slings and arrows that go with becoming a public person.

Surely there are people in this community who have not given up and have the ingredients to stand up for what is right and bring forth vital issues.

Where are the candidates for selectmen - please come forward and offer Wilmington the opportunity to survive as a community of common interest.

Please in a community of this size surely there is someone who has enough confidence in themselves and their fellow citizens to run for selectman.

Ski lessons

Wilmington youngsters had an opportunity to learn to ski this winter in a program run by the Wilmington Recreation Department. The youngsters were bused to Boston Hills Ski Area in North Andover, for a once-a-week ski outing. Here, instructor Helen Wuest (back to camera) works with a line-up of students.

A hand with his boots

One of the hardest tricks for a skier to learn is how to get the packed snow off the bottom of the ski boots, before stepping into the bindings. Mark Mercuri's boots had snow tightly packed to the bottom, so Wilmington Rec Director Ron Swazey gave him a hand with it.

On the way to the top of the hill are Darren Wentzell and Mike Gangi.

Warren Newhouse named to PR post at Hippocrates Institute

Lifelong resident of Wilmington, Warren Newhouse has been appointed as public relations director of the Hippocrates Institute in Boston.

He recently completed a two week intensive program in natural self-healing at the Institute, the oldest existing wholistic learning facility in America.

Newhouse first learned of the Institute's program while attending the 10th annual convention of the Cancer Control Society in Los Angeles during July 1982. He presently serves as president of C.C.S. and National Health Federation Boston Chapters. Both are consumer awareness organizations working in the cancer trenches as well as the legislative realm. Newhouse said that several bills involving wholistic healing and organic farming are again to be introduced to the 1984 Congress in Washington and locally on Beacon Hill in Boston.

The course of studies at Hippocrates covers a wide range of subjects which wholistic advocates claim are the prime reasons for widespread health problems in the U.S. The learn-by-doing programs involve body awareness, colon cleansing, sprouting and juicing, composting and planting, daily exercises, food combining, visualization and healthful desserts. Other related subjects and lots of recipes fill out the intensive course.

Newhouse claims that eight persons in his class of 16 had been previously diagnosed as cancerous. He said that every one of his classmates experienced positive results within three days. His personal reasons for enrolling were to experience first hand, a natural approach in self help health care, and a feeling that all persons ought to take more responsibility for their own well being. He aspires to greater energy and clearer thinking as results of the live-in experience.

"The two weeks spent at Hippocrates strengthened my belief that the main answer to many of America's health problems lies in diet changes, stress management and removal of toxins from the system," he said. "By cleansing the colon and internal organs, reducing daily stress and rebuilding new healthy cells with live organic foods and juices, the immune system can be reactivated while the body and mind can achieve unbelievable results in preventing and reversing even serious long term conditions," he continued.

"I fully intend to stay with this program and teach to those who seek a more common sense approach to health care by using inexpensive self-help modalities," he added. "The health revolution will reach new heights in the eighties. The American public is hungry for change. They are tired of expensive long term treatment of symptoms. Preventive medicine will be used more and more by future doctors," he concluded.

Reformed alcoholic to address Tewksbury High School students

A speaker from the Freedom from Chemical Dependency (FDC) Foundation Inc. of Needham is scheduled to speak in Tewksbury High School on alcohol and drug awareness. And it will not be just another session that issues mere warnings against the abuse of alcohol and drugs.

The program seems to have a unique approach. Nancy Morely, a director in community affairs for the foundation is to be the speaker, and she is scheduled for March.

The foundation is unique in several ways. Firstly, it is directed only to the public schools and, more importantly, all speakers are reformed alcoholics who can speak from experience. They are able to win the trust of the students and lend immediacy to the facts of alcohol and chemical dependency (drug addiction).

All have a special aptitude for teaching, according to the foundation. They are teachers who can handle sensitive issues openly and honestly.

Their's is a complete presentation of facts. They do not preach. They allow the students to make sensible decisions about how to handle alcohol and drugs.

During the past seven years the foundation has taught nearly 100,000 students in the public and private schools of the United States and Europe, with 23,000 alone last year.

Piano fund seeks 'C-note'

When Dorothy Fitzgerald retired from the Tewksbury Board of Library Trustees after having served for 50 years, the Friends of the Library established a piano fund in her honor, in order to purchase a piano for the series of Sunday afternoon concerts held at the library under the sponsorship of the Friends of the Library.

The fund has already received numerous contributions from many officials who served with her over the years, as well as from many members of her family and long-standing friends.

According to Donna Haines, chairman of the current board of library trustees and a liaison with the Friends of the Library, the piano fund is just short of reaching its mid-point, in the effort to purchase a new piano.

Miss Haines, a noted calligrapher, has created a replica of a piano keyboard for the library, and the keys are now being sold for $10 each in the Friends' latest fund raising effort. Purchasers of the keys may have their own name, or that of a person of their choice, lettered on the key they select.

The key representing the middle "C" tone will be sold for $25, or the set of all eight notes in the "C" octave can be purchased for one "C-note" ($100.00).

The group is hoping to have sufficient funds to purchase the piano by mid-April.

Ciampa and his troops

Tewksbury High School junior varsity girls' basketball coach Don Ciampa instructs his team during a recent timeout. Ciampa's team recently played a superb game in defeating Lawrence, after which Ciampa said that this just might be the best team he has ever coached at TMHS.

Wildcats capture showdown, 4-2

Wilmington High School senior wing Brian Tully scored a pair of goals and senior goalie Don Gunn (13 saves) came up with a superb third period, as the Wildcats clawed their way to a 4-2 win over second place rival Tewksbury in a Merrimack Valley Hockey League Small School showdown at the WYIA last Wednesday night.

The victory just about clinched the Small School division title for coach Bill Cullen's Wildcats, who will be making yet another tournament appearance this season.

After a scoreless first period, the Wildcats jumped to a 2-0 advantage early in the middle stanza on goals by Tully (Dennis Moran assisting) and junior defenseman Steve Caizzi (Tully and Moran assisting.)

The Redmen chopped the margin to 2-1 in that second period when senior wing Dana Tower hit sophomore Mike McLaughlin with a pass that resulted in a goal late in the stanza.

Senior wing Scott Robbins powerplay goal at 2:55 of the third period from Dave Richards and Kevin Cullivan proved to be the game winner. Tewksbury came back at 3:15 of the finale when Tim Kelly scored assisted by Wally McGrath.

Tully then pocketed the insurance goal, with the helpers going to Dean Athanasia and Moran. That score with just 1:21 left to play put the contest in Wilmington's hip pocket.

Gunn finished with 13 stops for WHS, while Tewksbury's Scott Nelson came up with 22.

Sgrosso scores 1,000 points

Tech hoop best ever

Shawsheen Tech's varsity boys' basketball team clinched the first championship and the best record in the school's history Monday night with a 74-45 rout of North Shore Regional of Beverly.

The trio of Wilmington's Bob Sgrosso, Rob MacInnis and Brian Bouthiette combined for 58 points.

Friday afternoon Sgrosso became the first Tech player ever to score 1,000 points for a career as he broke the barrier, advancing to 1,003 points before Monday night's contest. Sgrosso's record breaking effort came in the Rams' 74-37 rout of Nashoba.

Monday's win gives Shawsheen a 14-1 Commonwealth Conference record and an 18-1 overall slate, the most hoop victories ever at the school. The Rams broke the mark that they set just a year ago when they finished 17-3. Including tournament play, the Rams' record was 19-4 a year ago.

Co-captain MacInnis led the way with 24 points, followed by co-captain Sgrosso with 20 points, eight assists and five steals.

Bouthiette fired in 14 points.

Record setter

Wilmington's Bob Sgrosso, the first Shawsheen Tech basketball player to ever score 1,000 points in a career, shares the moment with his coach Ron Nowakowski. Sgrosso set the mark during Friday's 74-37 Tech rout of Nashoba.

had 14 assists and grabbed five rebounds in another fine all-around performance.

With just one game left, the Rams have clinched their conference championship and should be one of the favorites to cop the Division III crown when MIAA Tournament play begins next month.

Sectional Wrestling

Ferdinand sectional champion

Tewksbury senior wrestling co-captain Paul Ferdinand (114) won the sectional championship in the Division II North Sectional Wrestling competition held last weekend at North Andover High School.

Redmen coach Al Donovan had predicted all season long that Ferdinand was the favorite to win a sectional title and a state crown. The TMHS grappler will get a crack at a state title this coming weekend.

Tewksbury finished fifth (120 points) as a team last weekend behind North Andover, Triton, Hamilton-Wenham and Masconomet. Wilmington placed 10th in the competition.

Three other TMHS wrestlers qualified for state competition. Steve Flaherty (108) placed second in the sectionals, John Voto (148) took a third and Dennis Perry (101) a fourth. Paul Stephens (107) and Paul Mills (158) each brought home a fifth place.

Coach Mike Nee's Wildcats turned in a very respectable showing with heavyweight Dave Hanson and 129 pound Chuck Monteforte both advancing. Bill Szydlowski (122) will be the Wildcats' alternate at the state meet.

Wilmington Youth Hockey

Midget A's romp past Chelmsford

Wilmington's Midget A's remained red-hot in recent action with an 11-2 rout of Chelmsford sparked by the hat trick of John McLaughlin. Jeff Brennan, Joey Costabile and Richard Lomborozzi netted two goals apiece for the winners. David Needham also scored.

The Midget A's were on target again last week, as Greg Sullivan posted the shutout in a 7-0 victory over Lowell. The win secured Wilmington's first place position in their division.

Yet another impressive recent Midget A win was a 9-1 romp past Somerville that saw Lomborozzi pump home two goals, with assists to Costabile and Greg Smith. Steven Hunt scored two goals, with single lampighters to Scott Mugford, Needham, John McLaughlin and Jeff Brennan. Shawn Brennan, Jeff Brennan, Lomborozzi and John McLaughlin also registered Wilmington assists. Goalie Greg Sullivan played another fine game for the locals.

Pee Wee B's to Southie
The Pee Wee B's clipped South Boston in recent action behind the goals of Mark Mercuri, Kevin Barrett and Ricky Cristo. Anthony Barletta, Billy Finnerty, Mercuri and Cristo notched the assists.

Goalie Steve Edmonds received plenty of defensive support from Jay Pilcher, Kevin Connolly and Mark LaCava.

The Pee Wee B's played a fine game in a 4-3 win over Chelmsford. Scott Brennan, Finnerty, Billy Burns and Anthony Barletta scored the Wilmington goals with help from Barletta, Mugford, Matt Lopez and Kevin Barrett. Jay Pilcher played a good game in front of goalie Steve Edmonds.

Bantam B's knot Woburn
Joey Magliozzi scored the Wilmington goal with help from Rich Hayden in this tight defensive game.

The Bantam's roared past Somerville II, 10-3 in other recent action. Scott McMillan and Bob Seville each netted two goals for the winners, with singletons to Butch Alpers, Ritchie Hayden, Brian Savosik, Mike Smith, Steven McKenna and Mark Tully. Jay Guzzo had three assists, with McMillan, Hayden, Smith and Joe Magliozzi picking up two helpers apiece. Single assists were recorded by Seville, Alpers and Joey Vieira.

Bantam C's nip New Hampshire
Goalie Daryl Thomas played a superb game for the winners, with Sean Lambert netting both Wilmington goals. The locals played an outstanding game against the first place Southern, New Hampshire team.

Mite B's tie North Reading
Billy Lemos scored the lone goal in a 1-1 tie, with the assists to Mark Zambardi and Scott Audette. Andrew Pagliarulo, Matthew Phillips and Bobby Kelley all played well in front of goalie Billy Lemos. The Mite players all extended a "get well soon" to teammates Wendell Holmes, Greg Barry and Daniel Fitzgerald.

The B's were involved in another recent defensive struggle, tying Winthrop 1-1 behind an unassisted goal by Audette. Mike Patterson and Steve Walsh played solid games for the locals, as did goalie Bobby Lesko.

Facility requests

The Tewksbury Department of Public Works, through its Park Department, is urging that all 1984 requests for use of public facilities by residents, various town leagues, and all recreation and town sponsored programs be made no later than 4 p.m. Friday, March 2, 1984, so as to allow for proper scheduling of the fields and facilities throughout the year.

All requests are to be in writing and mailed to the Tewksbury Department of Public Works, corner of Pine Street and Whipple Road, Tewksbury, Massachusetts, 01876. All telephone inquiries can be directed to William Blakeney at 851-7341. Monday through Friday. Permit applications will be supplied upon request.

Wilmington Recreation Basketball Reading drops Wilmington, 42-35

Wilmington's traveling youth basketball teams split two games with Reading on Saturday in games played at Reading High School gym and won two out of three at home against Belmont Sunday afternoon.

In the opener Saturday, the seventh graders went down to defeat to their Reading counterparts, 42-35 despite out-scoring Reading in the final quarter, as they were unable to overcome a disastrous third quarter. Leading the scoring was Steve Hanafin with 11 points, as he dominated under the backboards, pulling down 17 rebounds. Andy Parr and Jon Masse shared the runner up spot with nine points each. Mike Buonopane had four, Brian Davis two and Jeff Bowen one. Jon Masse assisted in the rebounding with eight and Brian Pupa pulled in five. Jeff Botte had a pair of steals and Ron Pennie had one theft, as they led the defensive corps of Neil Penttinen, Jason Oliver and Brian Pupa.

Saturday's second game pitted the eighth graders against a tough Reading team that wouldn't quit, as Reading overcame a seven point deficit at the half to tie the game at the three-quarter mark. The final quarter was nip and tuck, as the lead changed hands until Wilmington pulled away at the end to win, 49-42. Mike Lombard led the scoring tying his previous season best 26 points and dominated the backboards with 17 rebounds. Joe McMenimen followed with 10 points, Eric Penttinen sank eight, Don Corson and Tim Fay each had two and Paul Maiella one. McMenimen and Penttinen each picked off seven rebounds and Pat Nally had five boards. Danny Woods led the ball hawkers with a steal along with defensive pressure by Tony DeSantis, Tim Fay, Tim Moran, Jonathan Oliver and Tom Moran.

Sunday, all three junior Wildcat teams were in action, with the sixth graders leading off with a 28-24 victory over Belmont. Jamie Robichaud led the scoring department, as he hit for a season high 21 points. Chris Riccio added four, Bobby Caruso had two and Joe Mahoney one. Defensive action was led by Mike Burns, Eric Eisenberg, Lalrry Flynn, Mike George, Steven Killelea, Joe Mulowney, Joe McFadyen and the Maiella brothers Greg and Jeff.

In Sunday's second game, the seventh graders were unable to hold onto the two point lead they had at halftime, as they lost by seven to Belmont, 32-25. Steve Hanafin led the scoring with nine points and Jon Masse was close behind with seven. Jeff Bowen popped four, Brian Davis and Jason Oliver each had two and Mike Buonopane one. Jon Masse led the rebounding action as he pulled in 13 rebounds. Hanafin added nine, while Bowden and Buonopane pulled in two each. Jason Oliver and Buonopane pulled off two steals apiece. Andy Parr, Brian Pupa, Neil Penttinen, Ron Pennie, Jeff Botte and Mark Bigliotti provided the defensive action.

Sunday's final game of the afternoon saw the eighth graders narrowly edge out Belmont, 40-38 in a low scoring defensive game. The first quarter ended with Belmont on top with a low 9-5 lead. At the half Wilmington managed a one point lead, with the fourth quarter being another nip and tuck adventure. Mike Lombard led the scoring with 15, Joe McMenimen was close behind with 13, Pat Nally hit for four, with two points each from Tony DeSantis, Don Corson, Danny Woods and Tim Fay. Under the boards, Lombard had 11 rebounds, McMenimen seven and Corson six. Some fine assists were handed out by Nally, Corson, Kevin Ouellette, Tim Moran and Tim Fay. Leading the defense were Tom Moran, Paul Maiella, Tim Moran, and Jon Oliver.

During the Washington's Birthday vacation, the older teams travel to Methuen where they are entered in the Pepsi Challenge Tournament that starts Tuesday evening. If they win they will go on to a Friday night game, with the finals scheduled for Sunday morning. They are also scheduled for a Saturday game at North Andover, and Sunday games at the Tech during the afternoon. The eighth graders are sporting a 17-4 record as they enter the tournament season.

Squirt B's bury Somerville, 8-0

Goalie Bobby Ernest turned in another shutout last week, as the Tewksbury Squirt B team continued its quest to win the Western Division of the Wilmington League.

Another all-around team effort was the name of the game. Scoring two goals apiece were Michael Prifti, Dave Whitman and Bill Dooley. Single goal scorers were Dave Cowe and Mark Harrington.

Dooley earned the playmaker patch with three assists. Chris Mikule and John Pawelczyk had two apiece, while Jeff MacNeil, Steve Previte, Mick LaPierre, Prifti and Harrington all had one apiece. Preserving the win in front of the net with excellent defense were Billy Latta and Mike Frasca in the 8-0 win over Somerville.

Mite A3 Manchester 0
Goalies Mike Correia and Mike DeGregorio put on a clinic, as they hosed down the hot Manchester Flames with a very exciting 3-0 victory. The scoring punch of Dave Henderson and Mike Delaney was all the Redmen needed, as Henderson assisted all three of Delaney's goals.

Excellent backchecking was turned in by Brandon Wagner, Ryan Columbus and Brian Gangemi. The defense that preserved the shutout was played by Brian Kelly, Jerry Murphy, Tom McMenimen and Stevie Patterson.

Pee Wee A's 3 Everett 2
The Pee Wee A team is finally on the right track, as they are suddenly combining good defense, goaltending, backchecking and some solid passing in recording two ties and four wins in their last six games. In a game that seemed to get increase in intensity with each period, the boys turned away Everett, 3-2. Doug Mann scored the first two goals, with Billy Doherty assisting on both scores. With 1:46 remaining on the clock, Tsuyoshi Fukuda stole the puck at mid-ice and went in to score the game winner. Excellent poke checking and defense around the net was turned in by Mike DiCocco and Neil MacNeil.

The Pee Wees next defeated Neponset, 5-0 in a game plagued by over 30 minutes of penalties. Goalie Keith Blum must have felt like a bumper car, as he was continually knocked to the ice after making a save. Alex MacLellan netted two goals for the winners. He was followed by Billy Doherty, Marty Kusmaul and Tsuyoshi Fukuda, all scoring one apiece. Keith Miles played an exceptional game on defense.

Tewksbury 3 Wilmington 1
Good team defense turned in by Mike DiCocco, Tom Verrill, Neil MacNeil and Keith Miles. Danny Femino scored the first goal late in the first period. Keith Krugh finished off the scoring with two pretty goals. Fine passing led to assists turned in by Miles, Fukuda, Verrill, Doherty and Kusmaul. Paul Botto and Chris Foley both played excellent games at both ends of the rink.

Pee Wee A's nip Manchester
The Pee Wee A team recently defeated Manchester, 4-3, as center Doug Mann led the way with two goals. Winger Marty Kusmaul scored the game winning goal with less than one minute remaining in the contest. Keith Krugh had two assists, while Keith Miles and Tommy Verrill each recorded one assist apiece.

Sandra Trainor candidate for state representative

Sandra Trainor has announced her candidacy for State Representative from the 21st Middlesex District which includes Reading, North Reading, and Precinct 3 of Wilmington. She is seeking the Democratic nomination for the seat being vacated by Representative Michael Barrett.

A resident of Reading, Trainor has served on the Board of Health for the past eight years. Last year she was an elected delegate to the Democratic issues convention. Trainor is the former president of the Reading Child Health Center and has been actively involved in increasing health services to the people in the local communities.

Presently, Trainor is employed at New England Memorial Hospital as the Coordinator of Staff Development. She is involved in the Massachusetts Nurses Association where she serves on a variety of committees including the Committee on Legislation.

Trainor has recently completed a Master of Science in Community Health Nursing at Boston University. While at the University, Trainor worked as a legislative intern in the office of Senator Jack H. Backman. She Sandra Trainor also developed first hand experience within the Massachusetts Department of Corrections by working as a Staff Development Instructor.

In announcing her intent, Sandra Trainor said, "I am looking forward to meeting the residents within the district and listening to their concerns. I believe my background and experience has prepared me to effectively articulate their concerns as the full time Representative from the 21st Middlesex District."

Sandra Trainor resides in Reading at 207 High Street with her husband Dan and four children, Stephanie, Michael, Jonathan and Amy.

Dr. Carol Sager to speak at convention

Wilmington Supt. of Schools Dr. Carol Sager has been invited by the American Association of School Administrators to participate as a speaker and panel member at the National Convention of "School Administrators" to be held February 24 - 28 in Nevada.

Louis G. Zeyen, convention director wrote to the Wilmington School Committee and said, "We wish to congratulate the Wilmington School Committee for having a superintendent who is outstanding enough to be invited to participate in our national convention."

During the convention Dr. Sager will present the ideas of the Wilmington School Committee and share program successes.

Dr. Sager's presentation will be made to an international audience of educational decision makers as well. She will have the advantage and the opportunity to spotlight the professional recognition of a well organized school system in light of today's criticism of the nation's schools.

SAT preparation course offered

Wilmington High School will again offer a mathematics SAT preparation course free to Wilmington residents who plan to take the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) for college admission.

Two sessions of this popular program will each provide 12 hours of review in arithmetic, first year algebra and geometry. The emphasis will be on developing the skills of problem-solving and building confidence with SAT type questions. There will also be a hands-on introduction to computer SAT practice materials that are available now in the Wilmington High School Library. Students may use these computer materials during their study periods.

Session I will be on six evenings from 5:30 to 7:30 in Room 205 at Wilmington High School. The first meeting will be Wednesday, February 29. Subsequent meetings will be on Mondays March 5, 12, 19, 26 and April 9.

Session II will be on four Saturday mornings from 9 to noon in Room 305 at Wilmington High School. The dates are March 3, 17, 31 and April 7.

Mathematics teachers at Wilmington High School are encouraging juniors to take the SAT this spring and then again next fall. Students frequently score higher when they retake the SAT.

Many colleges also require one or more achievement tests in addition to the SAT. The mathematics teachers are advising juniors now studying Algebra II to take the Mathematics Level I Achievement Test this spring. Juniors who will complete analysis - trig this year should take the Mathematics Level II Achievement Test.

The SAT and all achievement tests are given on both May 5 and June 2. Students who plan to take an achievement test should take the SAT on May 5 and the achievement test on June 2. Guidance counselors at the high school have complete information and registration forms. Students and their parents are invited to call Benjamin Levy, chairman of the Mathematics Department at 658-4581 for additional information.

Project Reachout for teen problems

Project Reachout is reaching the students of Wilmington High School. Numerous guest speakers have been invited to participate in group discussions.

On January 5, Richard Mahoney and several boys from the NFI Shelter Care in Middleton, presented a stimulating discussion regarding the effects of alcohol and drugs on behavior. The six boys from NFI presented their stories, depicting how drug and alcohol use led to their arrest and subsequent placement in a youth detention center. The Wilmington High School students who attended the program also had the opportunity to attend an open meeting of the NFI Shelter in Middleton.

On January 12, James Ferreira and Helen Leigakas from Choate Hospital Drug and Alcohol Treatment Center led a group discussion which focused on the reasons for drug - alcohol use and subsequent treatment of the problems. The WHS students were then invited to take part in a tour of the treatment facility.

Throughout the first semester, Project Reachout has been fortunate to have several guest speakers who delved into the topics of physical and emotional development in adolescence, dating, peer pressure, and decision making. Relevant films were incorporated into the program and utilized for discussion purposes.

The Reachout Program has enjoyed a successful first semester at WHS. In all, 57 students were enrolled for the first half of the year. Presently, enrollment is being established for second semester.

Parents or students wishing more information about the Reachout Program may contact Mrs. Elaine Levine, program coordinator, through the guidance office at the high school.

College costs rising again

FM TALK: A potpourri of events made this a busy news week. Comments on a few of those happenings:

The American Council on Education revealed that the price of obtaining the most expensive hat in the world — the college graduation cap — will rise again next fall. According to the council, the cost of attending a private institution in 1984-85 will average 8 percent higher than this year. Currently the average cost of one year at a school such as Harvard, Brown or Dartmouth is $13,000. Next year's above-inflation increase, coupled with 11 percent to 12 percent increases over the last two years, are necessary, says the council, in order for the private educational system to catch up with the spiraling costs being experienced by the rest of the economy. Do you readers realize that at the present rate of increase (the cost of tuition always seems to rise at an above-inflation rate), the cost of attending an Ivy League college for four years at the turn of this century will be approximately $132,000? Well, there's always a state school, which, depending upon how generous our legislators will be in years to come, will more than likely remain an education bargain.

The automobile industry reported an increase of a different kind last week: the sale of domestic cars in the first ten days of February were up 32.5 percent over the same period a year ago. One local car dealer told me, "That's the best showing for that period in five years. It's a definite indication that the U.S. auto business is on an upswing, especially in the small car market, which has been dominated by the Japanese and European car manufacturers." The recent break in the cold weather didn't exactly hurt sales either. My dealer friend added, "We had a slow period during late December and January, when the weather was terrible, but now car buyers are snapping up all the new cars that come into the lot."

Consumers are apparently spreading their disposable income around on more than just new automobiles. Robert Beck, volunteer chairman of the United Way, reported this week that the United Way received a record $1.95 billion in contributions from across the nation last year. That figure is a 9.5 percent increase over the previous year (the biggest increase in more than a quarter of a century), and translates into an additional $170 million for services.

Unfortunately not all the news is as bright as the aforementioned item. The EDB controversy, as you readers know, continues to soar. Talk from Washington is the government is proposing the use of radiation instead of chemicals to kill insects and bacteria on fruits and vegetables. According to Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret Heckler, the use of radiation presents no danger to consumers. At least one leading biology professor disagrees with Heckler, saying that it is unclear whether radiation will have no side effects or present long-term effects such as cancer or defective genes. I hope the government doesn't succumb to pressure from the food industry and hastily O.K. radiation as an alternative to cancer-causing pesticides such as EDB without first considering all the risks. Jonathan Lash of the Natural Resources Defense Council concludes that radiation is the best choice because "it looks a lot better than chemicals" and because "there's no residue left in food." That's all well and good, but if thirty years down the road we end up discovering the results of radiation are even more disastrous than those associated with EDB what progress will have been made?

Enough Orwellian chat. Here's a definite sign of the times: paroled convicted killer Dan White is living in a plush Hollywood mansion owned by a movie producer. The deal? The rights to make the celluloid version of the story behind the story of why White murdered San Francisco Mayor George Moscone and City Supervisor Harvey Milk in 1978. I find it hard to understand how a man who kills in cold blood can be made into such a celebrity. If you ask me, that movie producer should be planning White's life story from behind bars, not from within the palatial walls of his Los Angeles estate.

Here's another item that supports the idea that you can't judge a book by its cover: the organizer of this country's largest child pornography ring is scheduled to go to trial this week. Currently out on $1.1 million bail, that organizer turns out to be a 44-year-old grandmother from Los Angeles....You won't be able to buy pornographic video tapes, but starting in 1986, IBM Corp., CBS, Inc., and Sears, Roebuck and Co. will begin a videotex service that, for about thirty bucks a month, will allow you to view video images of various products on an IBM computer screen, press a button and then have the product delivered to your home and automatically charged to your Sears credit card account. NOW THIS IS HOW IT'S DONE... Skating instructor Linda Cuirolo Murphy shows the youngsters pick up the activity very easily. (Bob Cournoyer photo)

Young skaters learn their way around the ice

By JANET CONSTANTAKES

Some flew over the ice like divebombers coming close to a target; others did a partial strut-skate walk across the ice; and still others had trouble just trying to stand on their own two skates.

Having mastered the art of walking just a mere, few years ago, the three-, four- and five-year-old toddlers who skate weekly at the Woburn Rink are just as amazing as water babies, who in both cases, are learning a feat many adults are still unable to master.

Instructor and Woburn native, Linda Cuirolo Murphy started the toddler program last spring after she found there was not enough room in the Woburn Youth Hockey program, she herself started in, to accommodate the needs of the pre-school youngsters.

Linda, who is now in her third session of toddler skate instruction, began her own career as a youngster and having acquired a love for the sport, skated throughout both high school and college.

Most of the students who spend 30 minutes a week in lessons and another 30 minutes practicing freestyle, come from both Burlington and Woburn, while another group of Reading children, from the Red Sneakers Nursery School are also weekly visitors.

Outside of giving toddlers a recreational hour to mingle with peers, Linda said assorted physical benefits can also be achieved by learning to skate early.

Linda explained how, in addition to her skating instructions, she also teaches gymnastics classes, and she notices that there is a distinct difference in coordination between skating and non-skating youngsters.

Linda said motor coordination and the building of leg muscles were the two most important long-term aspects which would help youngsters as they grow and particularly in elementary school sports where running was very popular but for some youngsters an impossibility because, "If their legs aren't strong enough, they can't run."

Toddlers are trained by both Linda and her associate Arlene Carroll, and the kids learn under conditions where they are among children of their own age, with no older students to contend with.

"It's only the children out there (on the ice). There aren't a lot of people out there," Linda said, adding that she found by not having the older children to compete with, there was a better response from the youngsters. She also cited the fact there was no major pushing and fast-paced skating which could scare a child, but which can be found in many major ice rinks.

Linda also said she found "a lot of time the little ones are intimidated by the noise," which is also a major part of ice rinks with a variety of children and adults.

Linda said the youngsters usually adapt very easily to skating although she admitted, "On the first day I'll get a weeper (upset child)." But she said if a youngster should become upset the first thing she does is to remove the child from the ice until he or she is able to overcome first-day fears.

Linda said the child will sit and watch and usually is right back on the ice in a short period of time.

February is CHILDREN'S DENTAL HEALTH MONTH Give Your Child A Healthy Smile... And Share It For A Lifetime!

Children's Dental Health Tip — Week No. 3

Contrary to popular belief, crooked teeth are not totally hereditary, but are often caused by factors that occur in early childhood. The primary teeth are the foundation upon which the permanent teeth are positioned. If a primary tooth (or teeth) is badly decayed, lost prematurely or over-retained in the mouth, the position of the permanent teeth will be affected, usually resulting in crooked teeth or impactions. All these factors are preventable. Their early detection and correction are essential for straight teeth and healthy smiles.

Choate-Symmes offers CPR courses

Choate-Symmes Health Services, Inc., will offer two Basic Life Support CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) courses at the Symmes Hospital Division in Arlington during the month of March.

Classes will be held on Monday evenings March 5, 12, and 19, and on Wednesday evenings March 14, 21, and 28. All classes will meet from 7 to 10 p.m.

The nine-hour course leads to American Heart Association certification as a Basic Life Support Rescuer. Instruction covers topics such as: healthful heart living, the warning signs of heart attack, choke-saving techniques, and infant resuscitation. The course consists of lectures, demonstrations of resuscitative techniques, films, and the practice of these techniques by the students on life-like manikins.

The course is taught by American Heart Association certified CPR instructors, most of whom are professionals in the public service or health care fields.

Two four-hour CPR recertification classes are also scheduled for those whose CPR certification expires in March. Attendance at only one class is required for recertification. Classes are scheduled for Tuesday, March 6, and Monday, March 26. Both classes are offered from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m.

The fee for the Basic Life Support course is $15.00, and for recertification, $8.00. Pre-registration is required, and all courses are offered on a first come, first serve basis. For additional information or registration, contact the Choate-Symmes Community Relations Department, 646-1500, Extension 1442.

Berry Rehab Center seeks more volunteers

The John T. Berry Rehabilitation Center's Office for Community Participation is seeking volunteers to work with mentally retarded adults.

Currently, the Berry Center serves the needs of over ninety clients from northeastern Massachusetts. Volunteer opportunities vary dependent upon individual, hours available, interests and skills.

During the weekday hours, volunteers are needed to be program aides assisting clients to gain a greater degree of independence and self-sufficiency. Weeknights and weekends provide volunteer opportunities for direct care aides, one-to-one volunteer companions and recreation assistants. Recreation activities include aiding clients in sports training, community experience trips, arts and crafts activities, games and special events.

Many beneficial one-to-one volunteer-client relationships have been arranged, particularly with those clients who have little or no family involvement. Participation in the volunteer program at the Berry Center presents an excellent way for individuals to investigate career options, utilize and gain new skills, while acquiring experience in the field of mental retardation. Individuals who would like to obtain more information about the Berry volunteer program are invited to call 774-5000, extension 557 or 536, Monday through Saturday.

Guidelines for household products

Solvents, will help dissolve grease, tar and oil. Some good solvents are kerosene, turpentine, and alcohol.

Sanitizers, will kill or retard bacterial growth. Some good sanitizers are borax, pine oil, and chlorine bleach.

Bleaches, will remove color and stains. Chlorine bleach is the strongest, dry bleaches are kinder to fabrics, and less powerful.

Alkalis, will boost cleaning when mixed with water or other ingredients.

Some alkalis are ammonia, tri-sodium phosphate, lye, borax, and baking soda.

When shopping for cleaning products, buy according to what you need to get the job done best. For more information and free publications on cleaning, cleaning products and laundry contact, Jane Cappuccio at the Middlesex County Extension Service at 369-4845 or 862-2380.

For the best buy in household care products there are several things to consider. The cost, the effectiveness in doing the job, the time involved, and the amount of effort used. Since each person has their own personal rating, it's difficult to be objective, but there are some general guidelines.

Detergents and soaps come in many forms from the mildest used in dishwashing to heavy duty laundry detergents. Understanding the function of each type of cleaning product is more important than selection of a specific brand. Most detergents are comparable in performance. Those sold today are often a combination of ingredients, plus perfumes and other ingredients to make the product more appealing.

Some ingredients to look for to aid you in your cleaning are listed here:

What to look for when co-signing a loan

"My sister-in-law called yesterday evening and said that she had gotten a little behind in some bills. She asked if we would cosign a loan for her. We're a fairly close family, but we're not in the habit of talking to each other about money so I don't know much about her financial situation. Is cosigning a loan a risky thing to do?"

In a word, yes. The Boston Globe reported last month that 75 percent of all cosigners of finance company loans are asked to pay the bills, plus late charges and fees. If your situation is typical, there is a substantial chance that you will be called upon to pay for your sister-in-law's loan if you decide to cosign it.

What do you need to know to make the decision? Ask yourself what a bank or finance company wants to know before they decide to make a loan. Before loaning your sister-in-law a dime, the finance company will find out:

1. Her salary, how much she is currently in debt, and her credit record — how has she been about paying her bills in the past?

2. If this loan is to cover or "consolidate" an existing loan, how far behind is she in her payments now and how conscientiously did she make payments in the past?

Most of us find it difficult to talk to our friends and family about money — about our salaries, our debts and our previous problems with credit. But you need this information every bit as much as the finance company does, because in order to plan your family's financial affairs, you need to know how likely it is that you will wind up paying your sister-in-law's debt. Even assuming that she has the best intentions in the world, if her salary is too low to cover her debts, or if she is simply unable to organize her affairs so as to pay her bills on time, then chances are very good that her debt is going to become your debt, if you decide to sign on the dotted line.

You should also be aware that Massachusetts law is pretty unfriendly to cosigners. Jody Forchheimer, Consumer Attorney for the Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group (MASSPIRG) advises: "Massachusetts law treats the debtor and the cosigner as equally fair game when a loan is not paid. If your sister-in-law gets behind in her payments, the finance company does not even have to try to collect from her — they can go straight to you, and, if you don't pay up, they can garnish your wages and attach your savings account."

Why would the finance company pursue you without trying to collect from your sister-in-law first? (She, after all, is the one who got the money). Maybe your sister-in-law is out of work when it's time to pay up. Or maybe she's had a lot of experience dealing with creditors and doesn't intimidate very easily, whereas you can be counted on to rush in with payment in full the first time a collector threatens to garnish your paycheck.

If these sound like tough terms, they are. A bill has been introduced by Representative Thomas Finneran of Dorchester to improve the rights of cosigners when the primary debtor fails to pay his or her loan. But if you are asked to cosign a loan today, you should consider your risk and liability to be just as great as the debtor's.

Finally, remember that you aren't doing anybody a favor by loaning them more money than they can afford to pay back. It can be tough on a friendship to say no to a friend or relative who needs help in getting a loan, but it can be a lot tougher to pay that loan for him or her later on.

Young skaters

The youngsters themselves seem to be genuinely having a lot of fun while attempting to learn particularly when Linda plays such games as "One-Two-Three red light" where the youngsters are to move ahead on the ice and then stop when she yells red light, or "Simon Says" where they are also performing little skating tricks at the command of Simon says.

While many children do look forward to adorning the single-blade skates — Linda opposes the double blade because it's a hindrance to teaching real skating — Linda admitted, "There are a few who come because they know that there's a candy machine in the snackbar."

While some children will assist others by joining hands and helping through a difficult skate step, Linda said most of the children are having enough problems, at the start of the program, just keeping themselves up. Because they must concentrate on skating, turning and stopping, Linda said the youngsters have little time to worry about fighting among themselves.

Some parents may be worried about their children skating, and in many cases falling on the hard ice. However, Linda said not to worry because "if they're beginning (to skate), they must wear a helmet, and if they have on a good pair of mittens and ski pants, they're not going to hurt themselves."

From the sidelines, mothers coach their sons and daughters, although almost all the really difficult teaching is left to Linda.

During the 30-minute practice session, mothers and fathers are encouraged to skate along with their youngsters.

The student skaters are on different levels of achievement, and Linda admits there is still room for more youngsters who wish to join.

Linda said she received most of her student enrollment by taking out an advertisement in The Daily Times and Chronicle and discovering many parents were eager to have their children learn skating in the type of environment provided through the program.

Although the type of skating the three-, four- and five-year-old youngsters do now is more for fun than serious business, Linda explained how such early training can lead to bigger things with the right kind of motivation and follow-up training.

Linda cited the success and past practices for her two childhood friends, Olympic silver medal winners, Peter and Kitty Carruthers, who also began their skating careers as youngsters.

Linda said she and the Carruthers, along with other friends first learned how to skate before they were six years old, which obviously was a major plus for all three.

While Linda is successfully teaching youths, which she said is something she has always wanted to do, the Carruthers have achieved their own slot with success after they managed to skate their way to silver medals at the recent Olympic events in Sarajevo.

Linda told of the various training skaters must go through if they ever want to make it to the Olympics, and cited the extreme discipline — which may be initiated at an early age — as one of the toughest parts to serious skating, because if there is a deficiency in that area the chances of achieving real stardom quality are slim.

In her own classes, Linda has found a way to promote better participation and discipline in her own students with a system similar to the competitive medals the Olympic contestants strive so hard for.

Linda uses the 12-badge achievement system from the United States Figure Skaters Association and she explained how each youngster, after the first 10 weeks, is almost assured a medal, after learning the basics to skating. To receive the first red and white badge, Linda said youngsters must not only learn how to skate but to skate glide both forward and backward.

A variety of steps must be mastered before a toddler can acquire a higher badge and although it may not be a silver, gold or bronze from Sarajevo, to the youngsters and their parents, such achievement awards have just as much personal significance.

Roving

terminals, which will be available through Sears, will start around $100. By the way, videotex service was extensively analyzed by the Yankee Group, a Boston-based research firm, before the three business giants decided to go ahead with it. Frankly, I'm happy they have, since I'm one who hates shopping. This new Service will make it easy, especially around Christmas time, for guys like me. Besides, it'll be more fun to watch Cheryl Tiegs modeling fancy new fashions than simply staring at them on dress racks. I don't know about you, but I have a miserable time making up my mind when I see all those clothes lined up in a department store.

Shopping at home might leave you more time to take in a new sporting event. A new sporting event, you say? It appears Boston is in line for one of those new professional women's basketball teams that will begin play next summer. I refuse to say another word about this subject, other than the fact that we all know that this city has a bizarre dichotomy of sports legends: those that survive, like the Red Sox, Patriots, Celtics and Bruins, and those that have fallen into the garbage can for sports teams, like the now-defunct Breakers, Braves, Lobsters and Teamen. I will be very surprised if this new basketball team survives next year's hay fever season.

One final point: All you local flash dancers take note: the casting call goes out next week for the film version of "A Chorus Line," which will be directed by Richard Attenborough and choreographed by "Flashdance" choreographer Jeff Hornaday. Maybe I'll brush up on my breakdancing and give it a try. On second thought, I might end up breaking more than I bargained for. I'll stick to tapping keys and playing with microphones and cameras. This seems like the opportune moment to inject a word or two from that great dramatist, Delsarte, who said, "Art is feeling passed through thought and fixed in form."

With that, I'll bid you a fond adieu till we meet next week.

Nature facts

Could insects ever evolve into those monstrous sizes you see on horror movies? Probably not, says National Wildlife magazine. A single gray bat may consume 3,000 or more insects during a night's feeding; and a single cave of free-tailed bats in Texas may eat 500,000 pounds of small insects nightly.

Bats are the only major predators of night-flying insects, and they're good at it too, says International Wildlife magazine. A single gray bat may consume 3,000 or more insects during a night's feeding; and a single cave of free-tailed bats in Texas may eat 500,000 pounds of small insects nightly.

Every year, Louisiana loses 40 square miles of land into the Gulf of Mexico, says the National Wildlife Federation. This quickly-vanishing area of lush swamps and marshes of the Mississippi Delta provides a nutrient-rich underwater shelf that, in turn, provides more than a third of the nation's annual fisheries harvest.

After spending millions of dollars to stop erosion along creeks in the West's arid sagebrush hills, engineers turned to beavers for help, reports National Wildlife magazine. Grass is now growing and trout have Little Miss Muffet not only sat beside spiders, says National Wildlife's Ranger Rick magazine. She lived with them. Miss Muffet's father, a medical doctor who lived in the 1500s, let spiders drape all over his house in the belief that spiders would protect his family from diseases. Dr. Muffet even gave his daughter pills made from spiders when Miss Muffet got sick.

Barbary apes may help the British retain their hold on the Rock of Gibraltar, according to International Wildlife magazine. If the apes ever leave, tradition says, so will the British. Ever respectful of tradition, the English maintain a steady population of apes on "the Rock" by transporting them there from North Africa.

CHILDREN'S DENTAL HEALTH MONTH FEBRUARY 1984

Dear Parents,

The gift of health is the most precious gift we can give our children.

As Pediatric Dentists we believe February is the ideal time to rededicate ourselves to the goal of our children's dental health and it's obvious reward... A lifetime of happy smiles.

To help celebrate that goal please call for, or drop by our office for a free informational booklet on the care of children's teeth.

Help make your child's smile a gift we can all enjoy.

Our children are special... They deserve specialized care.

Sincerely,

OUR PLACE

The corner of Williams and Pleasant sports a large victorian home that once had the reputation as Stoneham's "haunted house." Now indistinguishable as anything other than a private residence, except for the groups of people coming and going during the week, Our Place, a private non-profit agency, has grown and come of age.

After ten years of community service, dedicated to providing information, support and resources to citizens in the Eastern Middlesex area, questions still prevail. Who goes to Our Place? Who do they serve? Why would I call or stop in? Who works there? What groups are meeting there? How are they funded? Could I volunteer?

In response to these questions and many others, the staff and volunteers have developed a unique twenty minute slide and tape presentation available to civic, local and church groups free of charge.

If your organization is interested in having the presentation shown at one of your meetings or services, please contact Holly Bayliss Monday through Friday from nine to five at 438-8800.

LAS VEGAS

The popular Las Vegas night program sponsored by the Chaplaincy Committee of the New England Rehabilitation Hospital, will be repeated Friday, March 16, with games and cash prizes open to all, it is announced by the Rev. Richard Kunzman, of North Reading, Chairman of the Chaplaincy Committee and Director of Pastoral Care at the 200-bed facility.

The event will be held at the Holiday Inn in Burlington.

The entire proceeds will benefit the interfaith Chaplaincy program at the hospital.

The program, opening at 7 P.M., will include Poker, Roulette, Over and Under, The Big Six Wheel, Black Jack, Horse Race Games, Money Wheel, Beat-the-Dealer, and other games.

About thirty members of the Volunteers Association and others will serve in various capacities.

SKI-A-THON FUNDRAISER

Greenpeace, the international environmental group will hold its first Ski-a-thon Sunday, February 26th at the Great Brook Farm Ski Touring Center in Carlisle, Ma. This cross country ski event will aid Greenpeace in efforts to raise the funds necessary to support its work to end the seal hunts in Newfoundland, Canada.

While Greenpeace has sponsored many different fundraising events, the Ski-a-thon marks a new innovation. Participants will gather pledges for the event and then either ski ten kilometers at their own pace or enter the 10 kilometer ski competition that will begin at 8 a.m. "We are really excited about the Ski-a-thon," admits coordinator Marc Gottschalk, "we are constantly looking for new ways to raise money and this event promises to be both successful and fun."

Through the efforts of Greenpeace, the number of seals killed annually has been reduced by 75 percent in the last two years. But this year, the Canadian government has agreed to continue subsidizing the hunt and Greenpeace must intensify its efforts.

The Ski-a-thon is being sponsored by Great Brook Farm Ski Touring Center, the Ski Market and WFTQ radio in Worcester. Information packets may either be picked up at the Ski Market or by calling Greenpeace at 542-8143.

TECH WRITING

Middlesex Community College, Bedford, announces applications are now being accepted for its nationally recognized Technical Writing Program, which begins June 4, 1984. This intensive 20 week course has gained a reputation for being one of the most successful training programs of its kind with over 98 percent of the graduates employed in high tech industries or related fields.

Designed in cooperation with members of the Massachusetts High Tech Council, the curriculum provides students with training in systems software technical writing. The software component involves study of three languages (PDP-11 Assembly, BASIC-PLUS and COBOL), data organization, operating systems and data communications. The technical writing component focuses on systems software documentation. Word Processing Training and a Management Skills Module complete the program.

Applicants must have a Bachelor's Degree and at least three to five years of work experience.

Tuition for the program is $2,300. Technical Writing V students are eligible to apply for HELP Loans, provided by Massachusetts banks or credit unions. Application deadline is April 4th, 1984. For further information call Middlesex Community College, Technical Writing Program, 275-8910, Ext. 278.

PART-TIME

Radcliffe Career Service will sponsor a panel discussion on "Issues for Part-Time Professionals," Wednesday, March 7, from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m., at the Cronkite

Graduate Center, 6 Ash Street, Cambridge. Panelists will discuss issues related to part-time work. The panel is open to the public for a three dollar fee which is payable at the door. Audience members are invited to bring a bag lunch. For further information, contact Kathy Soule, Radcliffe Career Services, 495-8631.

CHINESE COURT COSTUME

"Chinese Court Costume" will open at the Wenham Museum on February 21 and remain on view through April 22. The Museum is very fortunate to have as guest curator for this exhibit Marilyn Gardner, Adjunct Curator of Textiles at the China Trade Museum in Milton. In conjunction with this spectacular exhibit a special reception will be held to meet the guest curator on Sunday, March 11, from 2-5 p.m. On Wednesday, March 28, the Museum will conduct a textile conservation workshop, and on Wednesday, April 11, Mrs. Hamburger will speak on "The Splendor of Chinese Costume" and lead a gallery walk at the Museum.

The reopening of relations with China has intensified interest in Chinese decorative arts, especially textiles. This fascination of the West with things Chinese is evident in the liberal borrowing from Chinese textiles, inspiring patterns in everything from carpets to designer fashions to home furnishings. The exhibit comes at a time when Chinese costume is being studied and collected with unprecedented enthusiasm.

Dozens of samples of lavish embroidery, rich damasks, brocades, and woven silk tapestry will adorn the walls of the exhibit gallery. Perhaps the most spectacular object on display will be a late 19th-century yellow silk gauze Imperial Dragon robe worked in needlepoint, with the twelve symbols of imperial authority executed in double-sided satin stitch. The colorful silk court robes and related artifacts date from the Qing Dynasty (1644-1911). The exhibit is divided into three categories of court dress worn exclusively by the Chinese and Manchu who served the Imperial Court: Robe of State, Dragon Robe, and Outer Rank Jacket.

The insignia badge (Mandarin square) was an important accessory applied to the robe to indicate rank. During the Ming Dynasty (1368-1644) various bird insignia were worn by civil officials, while military officials wore animal insignia. Early in the Qing Dynasty, the Manchu adopted the use of these emblems of rank. A comprehensive display of Qing insignia badges is included in the exhibit, and they are among the most avidly collected and decorative forms of Chinese costume.

In addition to the textiles, the Museum will show a variety of supportive and complementary material, including paintings and engravings, court hats, glass hat knobs (also used to denote rank), and Mandarin beads. Most of the items to be displayed are on loan from local private collections.

Special hours during opening week, February 21-24 will be 11 a.m. - 4 p.m.

Regular Museum hours are Monday-Friday, 1-4 p.m., and Sunday, 2-5 p.m.

Admission is $1.50 for adults and 50 cents for children 6-14. The and reservations for Museum is located at group and morning visits, call the Museum 132 Main Street (Route 1A) in the center of office at (617) 468-2377. Wenham (Exit 20N)

TIDBITS

Hummingbirds are being electrocuted in increasing numbers by mistaking red insulators on electric fences for flowers. So the manufacturer of the "Red Snap'r" insulators has taken action, reports

National Wildlife magazine. The company has advised farmers and landowners to stop using its red insulators or to paint them a color, such as black or white, that will not attract hummingbirds.

Suppertime at the Ship

Come as you are to SUPPERTIME at THE SHIP restaurant, on Route One, in Lynnfield.

On your way home from the office, or on your way out for an early evening with your family, you're invited to enjoy the elegant atmosphere of a fine restaurant, known for fine food and quality service for over 60 years.

The Ship was the first restaurant in New England to offer early supper specials, and the tradition "with the right price" carries on. Every Monday through Friday, you and your friends or family, may dine between four and six-thirty p.m. on special entrees, served with complimentary hors d'oeuvres, at a special price that won't collapse the family budget. On Saturdays, the hours are extended and Suppertime is served from noon to six p.m.

"You can't beat the price or the quality," said John Zappala, The Ship's owner. "Everyone seems to enjoy Suppertime, and to keep things lively for those who have visited us in the past, we make new and exciting menu changes with each season."

"With the thousands we feed each week during Suppertime," he added, "we must be doing something right, and the compliments are fantastic."

If you are unable to visit The Ship for Suppertime, a similar menu is in effect every Sunday; complete dinners are served from noon to four p.m. The specials change weekly and are priced for families large and small. Dinners are $7.95 for adults, and $3.95 for children under 10.

Ties in Polish community — loosely knit, unbreakable

Since the 1880s, immigrants from Poland have settled in western Massachusetts. They're a widely disparate group, but traditions of family and church bind them together

A taste of the old country

By Frederic A. Moritz
Staff writer of The Christian Science Monitor

In the cold-meats section of Pat's Foods, you can't miss the tins marked "Polish Ham." The display of ham imported from Poland is just one reminder of a prominent feature of Polish-American life: the effort of former immigrants to maintain contact with the country they left behind.

To Polish-Americans who buy these hams at Pat's Foods, the purchase has an ironic twist: Many here send the tasty meat right back to friends and relatives in Poland. They say this is the only way Poles in Poland can eat the ham produced in their own country. The reason? The Polish government restricts ham to export in order to earn needed foreign exchange.

Pat's Foods in Chicopee may hardly seem like a starting point for a look at Polish-American life. After all, Chicago and New York have gained more fame as centers for Polish-Americans. But Chicopee — about 100 miles west of Boston on the Massachusetts Turnpike — is planted in the middle of western Massachusetts' historic Connecticut River Valley, where tens of thousands of Polish immigrants have settled since the late 19th century. Nearly 11,000 of Chicopee's 55,000 residents are Polish-Americans.

The influx began in the 1880s, as immigrant Poles settled amid brick-walled textile mills in cities such as Chicopee, Springfield, and Ludlow. These urban immigrants provided the work force for the area's growing industry.

Other arrivals spread farther north to farm the soil. Just before the turn of the century, as Yankee youngsters went off to college or to work in the cities, their families sought replacement for labor in the fields. The shortage of farm labor in the Connecticut River Valley drove field wages to $30 a month, compared with $20 a month in much of the Northeast. This was enough to draw in the Polish immigrants — many of whom had come from impoverished, rural parts of Poland and already had the farm skills needed.

Today, if you drive through small towns like Hadley, you will see plenty of Polish names on rural mail boxes — a reminder of the Polish immigrants who flocked from New York's Ellis Island to the farms here.

The families of many of these immigrants remain. While some of the young people leave the areas, many others stay to work in factories, shops, and professional jobs. Many attend local two- or four-year colleges or the nearby University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

Not far down the street from Pat's Foods, the twin spires of the 75-year-old Roman Catholic St. Stanislaus Church testify to another prominent feature of Polish-American life: the determination to have a place of worship where religious ceremonies can be conducted with a Polish touch.

Traditional Polish celebrations, such as Wigilia on Christmas Eve, emphasize church and family — helping to unite the Polish-American community

Yet Polish-Americans in western Massachusetts, even in their religious observances, are not necessarily a homogeneous group. In fact, they are as distinct as the rings of a giant redwood. Poles who moved to America during the early 1900s, for instance, are very different from those who arrived in 1945; they reflect the vast political and social changes that have affected Poland and the United States over the years.

On a typical Sunday morning, Polish-born Polish-Americans — both those who arrived early in the 20th century and those who have arrived in the last few years — can all be found at St. Stanislaus. They gather here for the early morning Polish-language mass.

A larger mass, this one in English, is held later in the morning. It draws the numerically dominant group of English-speaking Polish-Americans, the American-born children of the immigrants.

And, within the Polish-speaking group, there are even more distinctions, according to the Rev. Marion Tolezyk of St. Stanislaus. The older members of the congregation, among the first from their country to come to the U.S. farmed Poland's rural areas, he explains. The more re-

Try skimping on salt

Salt has delighted taste buds throughout the centuries. But recently medical experts have been taking a closer look at its potential effects on our health. Most of us don't know how much salt we actually consume until we try to cut down on our intake.

The body requires a daily minimum of about 200 milligrams of salt (sodium chloride) to function normally. That requirement is easily fulfilled in animal foods, vegetables and even in some water supplies.

For example, one-half of a cooked chicken breast contains about 70 milligrams of sodium, an egg, about 60 milligrams. Raw celery, carrots and leafy greens such as spinach are high in sodium, ranging from 25 to 50 milligrams per half cup.

Therefore, the table salt used in cooking or added to foods is not necessary.

Consumer Reports editors point out that using salt is an acquired habit. To break it, you must reacquaint your taste buds with unsalted foods.

For starters, don't use it in cooking — you'll miss that the least. Try to use more flavorings, such as onion, and double the quantity of the herbs you normally use. Avoid seasonings that come in salt form, such as garlic salt and onion salt. They're very high in sodium.

At the table, practice tasting your food before you reach for the salt.

Using a salt substitute is another way to reduce sodium. Eighteen brands were tested by Consumer Reports sensory consultants. Nine products contain potassium chloride and other compounds, eight have seasonings in addition to potassium chloride, and one is half potassium chloride, half sodium chloride. They were sprinkled into unsalted tomato juice and cooked in mashed potatoes.

The half potassium chloride, half salt product Morton Lite Salt tasted most like salt. The sensory consultants say this is the substitute for healthy individuals who want to reduce sodium intake. They found, however, that potassium chloride doesn't taste much like salt and none of the products containing potassium chloride can be considered true taste substitutes.

Among the products without sodium, the Estee for Meats and Sweet 'N Low Nu-Salt tasted fairly good sprinkled on or cooked in foods. Two other products — Adolph's and Estee for Vegetables — tasted more like salt when sprinkled on tomato juice, less so when cooked in potatoes.

Time for Volleyball Marathon!

Century 21 has announced that it is sponsoring the Third Annual Volleyball Marathon to benefit the Massachusetts Easter Seal Society on March 16 at the Reading High School Field House. This Marathon will raise funds for children and adults with disabilities in the Northeast area of the State.

The Century 21 Easter Seal Volleyball Marathon is open to groups of people from business, corporations, schools, clubs and organizations, as well as competitive league teams. Matched with teams of like ability, teams will compete for trophies and prizes, playing in categories of men, women or coed. Each team will play three games in an hour and a half time period.

The Easter Seal Society conducts a variety of programs and services to assist children and adults with disabilities in the Commonwealth. Among the services are camping, recreational swim programs, Home Health Care stroke support groups, occupational, physical and speech therapy, as well as programs to promote public awareness and accessibility.

Last year the Marathon attracted over 500 teams statewide. A highlight of the volleyball season, this popular event will be great fun for all participating teams.

The minimum entry fee for each team is $150. Each team receives a trophy for playing. Century 21 provides additional prizes for those teams that raise more donations than the minimum, including T-shirts, tube socks and painters caps. In addition, twelve Cinema passes will be awarded to each team raising $600 or more, provided by Showcase Cinemas in Lawrence, Cinema I and II in Saugus. The Piccadilly Pub of North Reading has donated a team dinner for twelve players whose team raises over $800.

For managers of teams raising over $400, an athletic duffel bag will be awarded. The names of these managers will be placed in a drawing to win special prizes

The top fundraising individual in the state will win a trip for two to the Bahamas, compliments of Assabet Travel, Northboro Center. For information and to schedule a team, call the Easter Seal Volleyball 24 hour Hot Line at 682-2423.

Chiropractor presents program to Retired Men

At a recent meeting the Wakefield Retired Men's Club were introduced to the study of chiropractic. Marsha Krohn, D.C. of Woburn, was the source of information, which, to many present was most enlightening. Dr. Krohn listed illnesses: aches and pains, skeletal abnormalities, etc., on a blackboard, to be addressed after her basic presentation. She listed only those supplied by her listeners. Moving on to a short slide presentation which depicted the examining room, laboratory facility and x-ray photos of the complete skeleton, with close-ups of critical areas.

Modern history of chiropractic dates to about 1895, but it's use and theory goes back for several hundred years. The basic premise is that many health problems are due to maladjustment of body structures which can be corrected by hand manipulation, generally, of the spinal column. The body is its own best drug factory. Chiropractors do not use drugs or surgery and they do refer patients to medical doctors when the need is indicated.

Nerve energy is as important to health as water is to flower, etc. A healthy nerve energy system is the prime mover of all other body systems. About arthritis, the speaker said, quote, "I have no cure but I can help you avoid most of the pain associated with it." Chiropractic treatment does not have to hurt, contrary to what one often hears.

After the slides were completed, the speaker turned to the ailments on the blackboard. She defined the aches that a chiropractor could ease and those that should best be left to the M.D., specialist and/or surgeon. The applause for the speaker suggested that Marsha had explained the practice of chiropractic and gained increased respect for the profession.

Despite wintry weather, attendance remains at a healthy figure. Recent visitors include: Milton S. Colclough, Peabody, Irwin D. Foote, Stoneham, Russell A. Green, Woburn, Howard Hughes, North Reading, Preston S. Johnson, Melrose, Roderick M. Lorente and Donald Winslow, Lynnfield, Fred Beyer and Frank Muse, Wakefield.

The roll of membership now includes Roy Calderaro, Melrose and Eric Nitzsche, Reading.

Let's be charged with base ingratitude, it might be well if we pause her to say thank-you, to many who make the Wakefield Retired Men's Club an on going success. To the area newspapers that carry our notices and reports of meetings and special functions. To Cerretani's and Gallahue's supermarkets for ice cream at Christmas Parties for several years past. To past President Charles Hayward for cent arrivals are relatively well-educated people from Poland's urban areas.

"Those of us born in the United States sometimes lack the more advanced command of Polish that is needed to meet the needs of the more sophisticated newcomers," Fr. Tolczyk adds. One answer has been to have one or two Polish priests from Poland assigned to assist in the Franciscan-affiliated diocese of St. Stanislaus.

There are other examples of differences within the Polish-American community. Take music, for example. Newly arriving Polish immigrants are often perplexed when they hear modern Polish-American music, which dates back to the turn of the century and sometimes includes an Americanized version of the Polka dance. According to some involved with the Polish-American community, the newcomer is more likely to reflect modern tastes in Poland and ask, "Why is the polka so popular here, when in Poland what we really like is the mazurka?"

But despite the distinctions of age, language, education, and background, a number of Polish-Americans

Polish sausage, a big-seller in Chicopee markets

candy at meetings; the extra touch of candy canes at Christmas and serving as greeter at meetings and club auditor for several years. To past President George Flewelling who makes sure that Santa Claus makes his annual visit. To past President Tom Coughlan and co-vocalist John Dingle, who with music committee pianist Paul Strain favored the club at Christmas with Nina Nana, a holy family lullaby in Latin. Mention should also be made that Tom often subs for Bob Sproul as song leader and chaplain. To past President Paul Richmond who commutes from Ipswich to bring his wonderful thoughts for the day.

The above are but a few of the 43 key persons serving the club in one way or another. Others will be recognized in future stories. We can't begin to properly thank the trustees, diaconate and the entire church family of First Parish Congregational Church for an ideal meeting place. It is a fact that the Retired Men's Club and their band use the church facilities more than the entire church membership, and for this, we are truly grateful.

Joann and Walter Moritko host Wigilia for their family point to many things in common.

Foremost among them are the ethnic-religious ceremonies built around church and family — most notably those surrounding Christmas, which some say has practically become the Polish National Day.

On the day before Christmas, the ancient feast of Wigilia — the vigil of Christmas Eve — begins. Families gather, sometimes from great distances, for the traditional supper, which includes the breaking of a bread called opłatek.

Sharing this bread, sometimes known as the bread of love, symbolically cements ties among families and friends and dissolves any friction. The ceremony involves exchange of mutual wishes for health, happiness, and prosperity. After a seven- or nine-course meal, the families often attend a midnight mass.

The Christmas season is also a time when area residents ship packages of meat, underwear, shoes, and toys to needy relatives or friends in Poland.

Polish-Americans also agree they are a people with a strong sense of humor — a characteristic that traditionally has helped Poles to cope with the blows of economic misfortune or enemy invasion of their homeland. Many Polish-Americans are amused by Chicopee's annual summer festival, which features "the world's largest kielbasa (Polish sausage)." But some Polish-Americans are concerned about a possible exploitation of Polish customs. And many are sensitive to "Polish jokes," sometimes repeated by non-Poles to mock or stereotype Poles or Polish-Americans.

The need for their sense of humor appears to be reinforced by current events. Continued Soviet dominance of their homeland, Poland's current economic malaise, and the failure of the now-outlawed trade union Solidarity to successfully push fundamental reforms are the latest setbacks in a national history that has seen perennial invasion or division by neighboring Germany and Russia.

In Chicago, Polish-American neighborhood has flourished

Still, the Polish-American community shows as many signs of integration into American life as it shows distinctness. Symbolic, perhaps, is the World War I memorial plaque just across from St. Stanislaus Church. The names honored in bronze attest that Polish-Americans comprised half of those from Chicopee killed while fighting in the US armed forces. The city's convivial Polish-American veterans clubs also attest to the many Polish-Americans who fought for the United States in two world wars.

In addition, a variety of Polish community and cultural organizations seek to stimulate study and consciousness of the past. One such group, the Society of Polish American Culture of Western Massachusetts, attempts to act as an "umbrella group," bridging the generations in an attempt to get the young people involved with talks, exhibitions, and concerts involving Polish history, art, and music.

One director of the society, newsmen Edward Cynarski of Holyoke, gives a cautious assessment of just what this heritage means to today's Polish-Americans:

"There is a strong family life and a sense of roots that people can stick to, yet there is also a sense of rapid assimilation. We know that this is primarily a cultural thing that we cannot make a living on. We must move into the United States to get along."

Mr. Cynarski maintains that Polish-Americans tend to be highly assimilated in a political sense; that is, they don't have a long agenda of specifically Polish-American issues for domestic policymakers.

But the rise of Solidarity in Poland, followed by declaration of martial law in December 1981, has created some specifically Polish issues around which Polish-Americans and their elected officials have rallied.

Politicians like Chicopee's Mayor Robert F. Kumar Jr. and the area's state Rep. Kenneth M. Lemanski (both Polish-Americans) were strong supporters of resolutions or other steps in support of Solidarity.

At times, it has seemed almost enough simply to be Polish-American to garner Polish-American votes — without any need to actually carry out policies demanded by Polish-American constituents. With the rise of Solidarity and the inauguration of Pope John Paul II, the Polish-born Pontiff, western Massachusetts has seen a rash of bumper stickers espousing such slogans as "Polish Power."

Representative Lemanski, a Polish-American politician of the younger generation, maintains that Polish-Americans often have felt a sense of disunity among themselves — a sense of having been neglected and of not being accepted by society.

We are seeking patients to participate in one of two studies:

A) A study involving a comparison of Arbacet and a placebo in the treatment of aspirin or other nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drug-induced gastric lesions or

B) A study to evaluate the effectiveness of Carafate in relieving gastrointestinal symptoms in patients taking anti-inflammatory medication for arthritis.

Patients who experience gastro-intestinal symptoms from their arthritis medication (aspirin or other anti-inflammatory pills) such as burning pain, epigastric pain, heartburn, indigestion, fullness, bloating, distention, loss of appetite, nausea, vomiting, cramping or diarrhea may qualify for the studies.

Arbacet is a synthetic enzyme which has been developed to protect the stomach from ulcer producing effects of aspirin or other nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drugs.

Carafate is a drug which may aid in protecting the lining of the gastro-intestinal tract from stomach acid as well as other irritating factors. It was approved in 1981 for the short-term treatment of duodenal ulcer.

The studies are designed to last approximately 4-6 weeks in length with an option to continue for 6 months. Each patient will be seen several times during the drug studies and will have blood drawn for laboratory testing. Patients will have endoscopic examinations of the stomach. (Endoscopy involves swallowing a flexible tube so physicians can inspect the stomach and duodenum. It normally involves a little discomfort.)

During the studies, all office visits, endoscopic procedures, laboratory visits, etc., are paid for under grants provided by the Marion Laboratories and/or Upjohn Company. Patients who successfully complete the study will be reimbursed $100.00.

If you qualify and/or seek additional information with regard to the above, please call Dr. Matthew D. Heller, 599-9250.

Take a hike!

Continuing with our theme of places to go on vacation or if you have a weekend of free time on your hands, Village Walks and whale watches are profiled this week.

Vermont Village Walks, hosted by Hike-SkiTour Vermont, are weekend and longer vacations set in a unique area of Vermont. The West River Valley with its charming villages of Weston and South Londonderry, the typical hamlets of Simonsville and North Landgrove, peaceful countryside and the scenic Green Mountains and National Forest offer a variety of experiences to the walker.

Each village has one or more comfortable country inns. On a regular weekend, vacationers stay at one inn. On long-weekends, they may walk from one inn to another on a mini "Inn-to-inn" tour.

After the walk a variety of other activities beckon: swimming in pools or streams, tennis, summer theatre, concerts, dancing, antiques and crafts. A day's walk can vary from 3 to 8 or more miles depending on the choice of the participants. Prices range from an Economy Weekend at $115 to a 5-day Inn-to-Inn Tour at $498. Contact Hike-SkiTour Vermont at RFD 1, Box 172, Chester, Vermont 05143 Tel. (802) 875-3631 for further information.

Greenspace, the international environmental organization known for its efforts to protect the whales from extinction, will sponsor its sixth season of whale watching trips. The 4 1/2 hour excursions, departing from both Provincetown and Plymouth, travel to Stellwagen Bank, a summer feeding ground for special species of the Great Whales.

Approximately 150 Humpback Whales are expected to return to Stellwagen Bank, 6-20 miles off the coast, in early April, after making a 2000 mile migration from their winter mating and birthing grounds in the Caribbean.

Marine biologists accompany every Greenspace whale watch, to provide expert commentary on the whales and other marine life forms that are observed.

To find out more about the Greenspace whale watches, write or call Greenspace, 286 Congress St., Boston 02210, Tel. 542-8134.

Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat

Broadway comes to Andover

The Broadway production of "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" comes to Andover's J. Everett Collins Center for the Performing Arts for one night only, Tuesday, March 13 at 8 p.m.

Direct from a sell-out Broadway run, "Joseph" has been hailed by many critics as the best Tim Rice-Lloyd Webber show yet. This bubbly Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" is a non-stop adventure which tells the story of Joseph, favorite son of Jacob and interpreter of Pharaoh's dreams. Its setting amidst the River Nile, pyramids and palaces of exotic ancient Egypt provides a backdrop for a tune-filled extravaganza sure to delight youngsters and oldsters alike.

Tickets for this musical romp has been called a far more likeable musical with a broader appeal than both Rice-Webber hits "Evita" and "Jesus Christ Superstar". A show which has true family appeal, "Joseph" is a merry and dazzling musical which has won both critical and popular acclaim on Broadway and on its first cross-country tour.

"Joseph and the

Broadway musical are still cheaper in Andover than in New York or "other" closer big cities — with top tickets at $26, and other seats available at $23.50 and $19.50. Group discounts are available, and tickets may be ordered by calling the J. Everett Collins Center Box Office at 470-1905, or by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Andover Endowment for the Arts, P.O. Box 3039, Shawsheen Station, Andover, Ma. 01810. Due to the expected popularity of the production, theatre-goers are encouraged to order tickets promptly.

The J. Everett Collins Center for the Performing Arts is on the campus of Andover High School. Exit from I-93 on Rte. 133 to Andover and turn right on Shawsheen Road. For further information, call 470-1905.

Tickets are also available at the Collins Center Box Office, open daily 10 a.m. - 4 p.m.; Andover Savings Bank, Main St., Andover; and at "Just For You", 36 Main St., Andover.

FILMETER

A capsule look at cinema

UNFAITHFULLY YOURS (PG) — Dudley Moore, Nastassia Kinski, Armand Assante. (Comedy) This is a remake of a 48 Preston Sturges film, which starred Rex Harrison. Now it is Dudley Moore who is a symphony conductor who thinks his wife is being unfaithful and plots the murder of his rival. Unfortunately, "Unfaithfully Yours" only fitfully has any spark to it. GRADE: C-plus.

THE DRESSER (PG) — Albert Finney, Tom Courtenay. (Drama) Albert Finney turns in an excruciatingly fine performance as the aging, half-senile Shakespearean actor Sir, who is coaxed by his devoted dresser (Courtenay) to do one last performance of King Lear. GRADE: A.

GORKY PARK (R) — William Hurt, Lee Marvin, Brian Dennehy, Joanna Pacula. (Mystery) Based on the best-seller, this is a murder mystery set in Moscow, with Hurt as a Russian cop who unravels the triple murder that turns out to be an international crime. The plot is twisty, the direction heavy and the mood is murky but it evokes the Moscow setting nicely. The main problem is that, for some reason, Hurt uses a pseudo-English accent which is extremely irritating. GRADE: B.

THE MAN WHO LOVED WOMEN (R) — Burt Reynolds, Julie Andrews. (Comedy) In this remake of the 1977 Truffaut film about a skirt-chaser, Burt Reynolds' jokes are crude and any charm that he could have exhibited is overshadowed by a continuous, annoying self-pity. Julie Andrews, who portrays his psychiatrist and lover, misses the connection and fades into the background. GRADE: C-minus.

REUBEN, REUBEN (PG) — Tom Conti, Kelly McGillis. (Comedy-Romance) If you want to watch a genuine actor at the peak of his ability, see Conti in action here. It's a slight story about a hard-drinking, hard-wrenching Scottish poet on a U.S. lecture tour who falls for a clean-cut, girl-next-door type. In Conti's hands this film becomes something special. It's funny, witty, heart-wrenching and sad all at the same time. GRADE: A.
